The Japanese poem: The Haiku

The Haiku was a 17 syllable Japanese form of poetry created in the 17th century. This form of poetry talks mainly about nature and how it can emphasize our emotions toward it.

The Haiku was first known as Japanese literature and wasn't actually known as the Haiku until the 1900s.

FUN FACT: Haikus usually don't rhyme. Since the objective is to express the least words possible, people usually don't turn to rhymes.

POMNI

By Ariana Wilson

Pomni is a cartoon character from Amazing Digital Circus. Pomni is also a jester. In fact, she is the main character and most popular. I'm sure you will love the show too.

Furries

By Ariana Wilson

I made this page in the newspaper because lots of people don't actually know what a furry is, so I'll tell you all about it .

What is a furry?

A furry is a person who cosplays as a human/any animal type. They also go to furry conventions. Here are some images to help you understand

Hope you like it!

Playing sports provides a dynamic avenue for physical, mental, and social growth. Physically, it enhances cardiovascular health, muscle strength, and overall fitness, while also fostering coordination and agility. Mentally, engaging in sports releases endorphins that improve mood, reduce stress, and boost self-confidence. Socially, sports encourage teamwork, communication, and leadership as individuals collaborate to achieve shared goals. Whether in a competitive setting or recreational play, sports also teach resilience, discipline, and the value of hard work, making them a powerful tool for holistic personal development.

Chapter 1 Flaming Wild

“Wake up,” a mad she-cat yelled!! My dark dream was filled with yelling. I slowly opened my eyes. Two longs (humans) were at the place where we got fed. The long’s nest was made out of wood, and they always had the best nest for us cats too. My sis could see me just staring into the feeding room. The she-cat’s blue eyes glared at me. She was brown fur with white speckles. “Come on! Its feeding time!” The cat looked angrily into the other cat's eyes.”Ok, fine!” The groan in my voice was loud but it was the softest in my nest.”So what's for food today?”
